

#3 – Just Sailing

Cruise suggestion Kvarner Bay (Pomer, Susak, Ilovik, Simuni, Rab, Mali Losinj, Pomer, Pomer)

Ausgangshafen: ACI Marina Pomer

Route 3 (1 week) ca. 125 Nautical Miles

Route from Pomer to Susak, via Ilovik to Simuni. From there to Rab, Mali Losinj and with a stopover in Unije back to Pomer.

Pomer

Our cruise starts and ends in Pomer. The small fishing village of Pomer is located in a very sheltered part of the bay of Medulin. What used to be a small fishing village is now a picturesque holiday resort with great, quiet pebble and country-style stone beaches and beautiful bays with excellent anchoring grounds. In addition to bathing, which is popular with all holidaymakers, there are a number of water sports on offer here. Nearby Medulin is the tourist center of Istria in this area, while Pomer is the dreamy counterpart, but Medulin is only a few minutes away. Just in the recent past, more sacral buildings and remains of buildings from the Roman period have been found and uncovered. For example, one can find the remains of thermal baths and villas.

The church of St. Flora from the Byzantine period, the cemetery church of St. Fiora and the parish church of the Virgin Mary with a wooden Madonna statue from the 16th century are also definitely worth a detour. A trip to Pula is also worthwhile, here you can visit the amphitheater, the Arena of Pula, with its underground passages from Roman times. Pomer is ideal for sports enthusiasts and nature lovers. Get to know the nature around the Medulin Bay better with an extensive walk, a hike or a bike tour (for example to Premantura). For water sports enthusiasts, there is the possibility of wind and kite surfing or the wakeboard park. The best way to get to know the diversity of the underwater world is to go diving or snorkeling off Kamenjak. Also explore the surrounding area, a trip around Cape Kamenjak, the beautiful bays and turquoise waters immediately radiate peace and relaxation - or explore the Porer lighthouse at sunset with a great chance to see dolphins as well. In Pomer itself you will find some excellent restaurants offering traditional dishes. Since Pomer is excellent for farming oysters and mussels, you can also get many mussel and fish dishes. Most restaurants serve local wine from Istria or the popular truffles from northern Istria around Motovun.

Susak

Susak is in the southwest of Losinj in the Kvarner Bay. It is a pure sand island, and its beautiful beaches almost give you a Caribbean feeling. The island's hills are home to grapevines, blackberries, olives, figs and many other different types of plants. Susak has just 200 inhabitants who live on the car-free island. They make their living mainly from agriculture, fishing and, of course, tourism. If you want to escape mass tourism, this is the right place for you, because the inhabitants still live very traditionally, everything is very original, almost a bit sleepy.

The 11th century church of Sveti Nikola and the lighthouse on the Garba peak are worth seeing. The latter is perfect for a romantic walk or as a stopover for a complete island hike. There are some ancient shipwrecks off the coast, which should be of particular interest to those interested in diving and snorkelling. Susak is worth a detour on the way to Mali Losinj, or you can visit Mali Losinj and take a day trip from there to the decelerating island in the Adriatic Sea. You will also find several restaurants on Susak, they will spoil you with culinary delights. Locals on site can recommend one of the restaurants for lunch or dinner. A supermarket and a small bakery also offer the possibility for a meal in between.

Ilovik

Ilovik, also known as the Island of Flowers, because of the island's lush vegetation. Today, about 170 inhabitants live in the town of the same name. They live from winegrowing, fishing, sheep breeding and, like many of the Croatian islands, from tourism.

The town lies in a small bay, sheltered by the northern side of the uninhabited island of Sv. Petar. The coast with endless sandy beaches is easily accessible from everywhere and the largest bay with a beautiful sandy beach is Parzine, located on the south-eastern side of the island. Remains of ancient buildings can also be found on Ilovik, and the island has a long history of population behind it.

The waters around Ilovik are naturally protected from all winds (except the scirocco) and can provide a safe anchorage for all boats.

The underwater world around Ilovik also has much to offer and there is an underwater archaeological site nearby.

In town there is a grocery shop, bakery, pastry shop and several restaurants. Take a walk through the town or a pleasant hike through the evergreen vegetation of the Mediterranean Sea.

Simuni

The small fishing village is located on the southwest coast of the island of Pag. The village has around 165 inhabitants and, in contrast to nearby Novalja, it is rather quieter here. Here, holidaymakers are offered a quiet, idyllic atmosphere in which to relax and unwind. For all water lovers, there is a long beach to the southwest of the village, where pine trees provide natural shade. Near the lighthouse, the underwater world is particularly interesting for divers and snorkelers, as the area becomes rather rocky there. There are also numerous leisure activities on offer at neighboring beaches.

For the hunger in the evening or in between, there are several restaurants to choose from, all serving traditional dishes, excellent wines, and partly international dishes, but you should not miss out on the fresh fish. Let the evening end comfortably with a glass of wine. Nautical enthusiasts can moor up at the local ACI and take advantage of the town's good infrastructure to go on day trips or similar. Simuni is also particularly suitable for families with children and has something to offer for everyone.

Rab

With about 2,500 hours of sunshine per year, the island of Rab is one of the sunniest parts of Europe. The eponymous town of Rab looks back on a long and eventful past that reaches back to pre-Roman times. The silhouette of the town is also unique, its unmistakable landmark, the four bell towers, already hinting at its history. The old town is situated on a kind of peninsula between the bell towers. There are small shops and souvenir shops on every corner, and there are also numerous restaurants for culinary indulgence. For all bathing holidaymakers, there are numerous sandy and pebble beaches, beautiful bays, and crystal-clear water in and around Rab. Thanks to the mild climate and lush vegetation, it is very easy to endure here, and you will quickly fall under its enchanting spell.

On a walk through the old town, you could see most of the historic buildings. Here the Prince's Palace, the monastery church of SV. Andrije and the Romanesque bell tower - from which you can enjoy the magnificent view over the entire old town. Likewise, Rab offers the 7th century St. John the Evangelist Church & Monastery. You can still admire the beautiful, well-preserved floor mosaic and then look at the ruins of the former Benedictine monastery. The Komrcar Park with the historic Galjarda Fortress is particularly suitable for walks. The city park also invites you to take a long walk among green plants. For active holidaymakers, there is also a lot on offer here. Of course, the snorkelling and diving spots are also unique, especially from the boat, and there are also several hiking and cycling tours to discover on land across the entire island.

Mali Losinj

Mali Losinj is situated in the protected Augustus Bay, in the middle of the island of Losinj. In the 19th century, the town was one of the most important trading and maritime centres because of its location. Mali means "small" in Croatian; a little to the south-east is Veli Losinj (the former "big"), which is well worth seeing. Due to its location, however, the towns have developed in such a way that Mali Losinj is now much larger.

Mali Losinj has developed into one of the most popular holiday resorts in the Kvarner Bay. Life in Mali Losinj takes place around the large harbor basin. There you will find many restaurants, cafés, bars and typical local konobas. In the side streets there is much less hustle and bustle - here you will find a few small boutiques, souvenir shops and shops that invite you to shop. Worth seeing here are the sacred buildings and the Apoxiomen, a statue found at the bottom of the sea in 1999. It is more than two thousand years old and shows the Greek athlete, of whom there are only seven similar statues.

Also worth seeing is the church of St. Martin, where you can find out a lot about the history of the island. For hikers and walkers, the aromatic garden of Losinj is suitable, here you can find all the medicinal herbs that are native to Losinj. The Cikat forest park is also perfect for this. The latter offers a great variety of flora and fauna and is a very well-functioning ecosystem and nature park.

Beautiful hiking and walking trails run through the entire park and there is plenty for young and old to discover in the 236-hectare park.

Adjacent to the park is Cikat Bay, which invites you to stop for a swim in the deep blue waters. If you would like to do something a little more unusual, there is also the possibility of taking scenic and panoramic flights from the small airport on Losinj to get to know the islands of the Bay of Kvarna from above.
